LONDON LIBRARY,
ST. JAMES'S SQUARE.

THE LIBRARY offers to its Members upwards of 100,000 Volumes selected from the literature of all countries, and including a large proportion of old and valuable Works not supplied by ordinary Circulating Libraries.

Additions are continually made, both of the standard Works of the day and of older and rarer Books.

Fifteen Volumes at a time are allowed to Country Members: Ten, to residents in London. An additional number of Volumes may be had, at the rate of five Volumes at one time of old Works, or the immediate supply of any new work in the Library by the purchase of an extra copy, for every additional pound per annum.

Fourteen days are allowed for the perusal of new Books (i.e. Books published within two years), and two months for Books of older date.

The Reading Rooms, which are open daily from Ten to Half-past Six, are furnished with Periodicals, English and Foreign, together with a selection of new Books for use in the rooms only.

Within the circuits of the London Parcels Delivery Companies, Books may be exchanged, not oftener than once a week, at the Subscriber's residence, on the payment of 10*s.* a year. Special arrangements are made with Country Subscribers for the carriage of parcels.

Subscribers are admitted on the recommendation of a Member, subject to the approval of the Committee.

Terms and form of application for membership are to be had on application.

The Catalogue, fifth edition, in 2 vol. roy. 8vo, is for sale: price 21*s.*; to Members, 16*s.*

PREFACE

TO THE FIFTH EDITION.

IN publishing a Fifth Edition of the Catalogue of the London Library, the Editor, while drawing attention to the enlarged dimensions of the Institution, avails himself of the opportunity for briefly reviewing its history.

The Library dates its origin from 1840. On the 24th of June in that year, a public meeting of 'friends to the establishment of a Library from which Books may be had by Subscribers at their homes' was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Lord Eliot, M.P. in the chair. At this meeting the following Resolutions were passed :—

'That a Public Library, embracing every department of Literature and Philosophy, and from which Books may be had by Subscribers at their homes, is greatly needed in London.'

'That such a Library will present many advantages not offered by the British Museum, even to those who are able to resort during the day to that or any similar Institution; while to all persons engaged in a laborious business or profession, and to all families residing in London or its neighbourhood, it will supply a most important want.'

A Committee of gentlemen eminent in the world of letters was at the same time appointed to draw up Rules for the Library, and to make all other arrangements necessary for the realization of the scheme. Moderate terms of subscription were proposed, and, by the 28th of November, the number of subscribers was sufficient to enable the Committee to announce publicly that the Library would be opened and books issued on the 1st of May, 1841. From that day to the present, the forty-seventh anniversary of the foundation, the Library has gradually increased in extent and in usefulness.

The want of such a Library, and the proposal to meet the want, were well described in a pamphlet published at the time in explanation of the scheme.

'There is, in truth, in London, no national Library whatever from which books are allowed to be taken out, and which is thus capable of being compared with the great national Libraries of Germany and France. The metropolis of a nation boasting herself foremost in all the characteristics of civilization, and glorying in the pre-eminence of her arts and letters—the city larger than any other city in the world—the greatest, busiest, and wealthiest emporium of Literature known in the world's history, has no

Library from which books may be taken out by the readers and authors who swarm within its far-lying limits, containing more than 20,000 volumes.¹ And though sixty years and more have passed since the great historian uttered his complaint and his reproach, the deficiency which he stigmatized still remains a deficiency, and still is "the writer who has undertaken to treat on any large historical subject reduced to the necessity of purchasing for his private use a numerous and valuable collection of the books which must form the basis of his work."²

'We propose to establish a Library which, containing books in every department of Literature and Philosophy, shall allow these books to be taken out and read, where they can be read best, in the study and by the fireside, and which shall offer its advantages to the public on terms rendering it generally accessible. We propose to establish this Library by means of a subscription, so moderate that it can be grudged by none who feel the want of a large, general, comprehensive Lending Library, either for themselves or for their families, and yet sufficient to ensure the establishment of the Library on an ample scale, with the support of all by whom the want of it is felt. And, taking into consideration the increased and daily increasing facilities of conveyance to all parts of the United Kingdom, we propose to frame regulations which shall make it worth the while of persons in the country and at a distance, no less than of those living in London and its immediate vicinity, to avail themselves of the Library, thereby increasing at one and the same time its sphere of usefulness, and its means of supplying the wants of its Subscribers. Not, therefore, only for the Metropolis itself, but for all parts of the United Kingdom between which and the Metropolis there is easy and regular communication, we propose to establish in London a large, general, comprehensive, cheap Lending Library.'

In February 1841 the Committee elected Mr. John George Cochrane to be their Secretary and Librarian, and in the following month, having engaged premises at No. 49 Pall Mall, they began to purchase books. The Library was opened on the 3rd of May with a collection of about 3,000 volumes, which, by the following March, when the first Catalogue was published, had increased to 13,000. The additions of subsequent years have raised the number of volumes in the Library to 100,000. Purchased on the most advantageous terms, there has been brought together in the course of forty-seven years, by the expenditure of some £40,000, a noble collection of books, offering to members of the Library a choice of standard works in all the various departments of literature. The following enumeration of the divisions in which the books are arranged upon the shelves will convey a general idea of the character of the Library as it now exists:—

1. Ancient History, Greek and Latin Classics; including the collections of Boeckh, Gruter, Grævius, Gronovius, Mai, Muratori, etc.
2. Ecclesiastical History; including the Acta Sanctorum, Baronii Annales, Bullarium Romanum, Canisius, Centuriatores Magdeburgenses, Councils, Dachery, Maillon, Waddingii Annales Minorum, etc.

² Gibbon's 'Vindication,' Miscell. Works, vol. iv. p. 591. London, 1814.

3. Theology ; including the Fathers of the Church, Parker Society Publications, Puritan and Nonconformist Writers, Recent Controversies, etc.
4. Modern European History.
5. Voyages and Travels ; including the collections of Astley, Churchill, Hakluyt, Kerr, Pinkerton, Purchas, Ramusio, etc.

17. Reviews, Magazines, and other Serials, bound in sets ; The 'Times' (1862-88), and a collection of more than 6,000 Pamphlets.
18. Novels and Romances, old and new.
19. English Poetry and Drama.
20. English Miscellaneous Prose Literature.
21. Works on India and Australia ; Publications of the Oriental Translation Fund ; Müller's Sacred Books of the East ; Trübner's Oriental Series, etc.
22. French Literature ; Historical, Documentary, Poetical, etc.
23. German Literature ; including the Historical collections of Freher, Leibnitz, Pertz, Pez, Schardius, Westphalen, etc. ; German Classics, etc.
24. Italian Literature, General and Historical ; including the Archivio Storico, collections of Muratori, Grævius, Alberi, etc. ; Crescimbeni, Ginguené, Tiraboschi, etc.
25. Spanish and Portuguese Literature, Historical, Poetical, Dramatic, the collections of Navarrete, etc.
26. History and Literature of British America ; of the United States ; of Central and South America.

In the selection of books, the only absolute limitations which the Committee imposed upon themselves referred to new books of an ephemeral character and technical or professional works. The London Library was not designed to compete with the ordinary Circulating Libraries, nor with Libraries of a special or professional character—with those of the Inns of Court for instance, of the Royal Society, the College of Surgeons, or the Medical Society.

Donations of books have been received from time to time, some of which were of special interest—namely, a collection of works written on England by foreigners, presented by Mrs. Edwin Edwards ; eighty-five volumes of Italian plays collected and presented by Mr. Frank Marshall ; works relating to the ecclesiastical history of France, presented by Mrs. Jervis, widow of the writer of the 'History of the Church of France,' 1872 ; a collection of Latin poetry of the post-classical period, presented by the Rev. Dr. H. Holden ; a German collection, chiefly theology, presented by the Rev. J. De Soyres ; and a library of more than 6,000 volumes bequeathed this year (1888) by Mrs. Mackay, widow of the writer of 'The Tübingen School and its Antecedents,' 'The Progress of the Intellect,' and other works. The last named are not included in the present Catalogue.

On Monday, the 15th of May, 1843, a Reading Room was opened for the use of the Members, and so rapidly did the accumulation of books proceed, and the demand for space increase in urgency, that the Committee, in April 1845, agreed to take a lease of more extensive premises in St. James's Square, namely, the house (formerly known as Beauchamp House) now occupied by the Library. By the end of November in the same year the new premises had been shelved and duly prepared for the reception of the books, which were at once removed from Pall Mall. The lease then signed expired in 1866, and was renewed for a term of twenty-one years. Eight years later the long sub-tenancy by the Statistical Society of the rooms on the ground floor of the house was determined, and the space vacated was occupied by the Library, to the great convenience of the Members. The apartments allotted to the Librarian were also taken into use for the storage of books. Still the demand for more shelf-room continued, and in the spring of 1879 negotiations for the purchase of the freehold of the Library building and adjacent premises in Duke Street were brought to a successful issue. The purchase-money was raised by debentures taken up by Members of the Society, and it is satisfactory to know that the great advantages thus secured to the Society do not cost more in interest and a sinking fund than £200 a year in excess of the rent previously paid for the Library building alone. While this Catalogue is passing through the press alterations are in progress which when completed will add three large rooms to the Library capable of accommodating several thousand volumes.

In 1852 the Committee were called upon to express, in their Annual Report, their sense of the serious loss which the Institution had sustained in the death of their able and zealous Librarian, Mr. Cochrane. They appointed as his successor Mr. William Bodham Donne, whose valuable services to the Library were continued until 1857, when he retired, receiving, as a mark of recognition of the esteem in which he was held by the Society, a grant of the privileges of a Life Member of the Library. Mr. Donne was succeeded by the present Librarian, who has held the office for nearly thirty-one years.

In 1855 an innovation was made in the constitution of the Library, the importance of which has been fully justified by success. The General Meeting adopted a Resolution by which Annual Subscribers of £3 (that is £1 more than the ordinary subscription) should, on the nomination of a Member, be admitted to the privileges of the Library without the payment of an entrance fee. By the Resolution of a subsequent General Meeting, the distinctive character of nominees, as applied to these subscribers, was abolished, and they have since been admitted in the same way that other Candidates are admitted by introduction, and are allowed the same privileges. At the present time, the Annual Subscribers of £3 constitute more than half the number of Members of the Society. Other changes in the laws of minor importance have been made at various General Meetings. The Laws and Regulations, as they now stand, are reprinted in this volume, but it may not be amiss briefly to recapitulate here the privileges enjoyed by every Member of the Society. He is entitled to the use of ten volumes at a time in town, or fifteen in the country, exchanging them for others at his pleasure. For every extra £1 per annum he may have either five additional volumes of old books, or one new work. On payment of 10s. a year, the books which he orders will be delivered to him at any place within reach of the London Parcels Delivery Companies. The Reading Room, which is furnished with periodicals, English and Foreign, is open to him from Ten o'clock in the morning till Half-past Six in the evening, and he is at liberty to consult the books on the shelves in all parts of the Library. For cleaning purposes the Library is closed three days at Christmas and Easter. New Subscribers are admitted on the recommendation of a Member, subject to the approval of the Committee.

A striking proof of the success with which the Library has fulfilled and continues to fulfil the purpose for which it was created, will be found in the names of the many illustrious writers which appear in the present and in previous lists of its Members, and in the use which they have made of its treasures. In addition to this silent testimony to the usefulness of the Institution, may be quoted the opinion of M. Guizot, given in evidence before a Committee of the House of Commons on Public Libraries in 1849, an opinion which is supported by that of many other participants in the benefits of the Library. 'If the London Library,' says M. Guizot, 'had not existed, I should have felt great inconvenience. It is a very useful Library: there are a great many excellent books about English History which I have found there. It is a great inconvenience to me to be obliged to go to the British Museum, and not to be able to work in my own room, with my own books; that is a great part of the pleasure of working.'

Mr. Leigh Hunt, in his 'Stories from Italian Poets,' says: 'I cannot, in gratitude for the facilities afforded to myself, as well as for a more obvious and public reason, dismiss this Preface without congratulating men of letters on the establishment and increasing prosperity of the London Library, an institution founded for the purpose of accommodating subscribers with such books at their own houses as could only be consulted hitherto at the British Museum.'

Mr. M'Cabe, in the Preface to his 'Catholic History of England,' states that 'he has been possessed of one great advantage. As a Member of the London Library he has had access to, and the use in his own home of, a splendid collection of works. On the shelves of that Library he has found most of his authorities—the ancient monastic writers, and those authors who afford passages illustrating the facts stated by the chroniclers.'

A writer in 'Blackwood's Magazine' (June 1857) expresses his 'thanks to that most convenient, and to all students most valuable of institutions, the London Library, which manifold experience causes me to urge every man of letters to join.'

Quotations like these might be multiplied, but it will suffice to add the concluding words of the Annual Report for 1857, which are still applicable in all their force to the state of the Library:—

'The Members who have come in during the past year have been such as are best able to appreciate the worth of this Institution. From many quarters the Committee have received, through their Secretary, assurances that the Library has been of the most material benefit to Members engaged either in literary composition or in studious research. For such classes of readers, this Library—it can hardly be too often repeated—was originally formed, and by such its interests will be best maintained. As a mere Circulating Library, it is neither able to compete, nor does it aim at competing with any trade speculations of the kind; but, as a collection capable of being the scholar's armoury, while it supplies the general reader with the best modern English and Foreign works, the London Library stands without a rival, and has no reason to dread ordinary competition.'

The present edition of the Catalogue of the London Library comprises the volume first published in 1842, and all subsequent editions and Supplements to May 1887. The alphabetical arrangement adopted is that which was observed by the first Librarian, and is complete from A to Z in the first Volume.¹ The enumeration of the works (in collected editions) of individual and voluminous authors is given in a separate Volume, entitled Appendix to the Catalogue, in which also will be found the enumeration of works included in the large historical and other collections formed in Italy, France, Germany, and England, together with the productions of Printing Clubs and Publishing Societies. In these the London Library is particularly rich, and the names of the chroniclers, the medieval and other writers whose works are to be found only in these collections, are given in their places in the alphabetical list. The names of some obscure monastic chroniclers rarely asked for, are, it is true, thus brought forward, but the disadvantage is countervailed by the ready reference afforded to writers such as Alcuin and Æneas Sylvius, to ancient travellers, poets, etc., whose works might otherwise escape the notice of readers, and seem to be not in the Library.

With a view to facilitate reference to the collection of Tracts, an Alphabetical Index of them is printed also in the Appendix.

The Appendix further contains a classified Index of the subjects on which the books in the Library treat. A more elaborate and carefully constructed classification was at one time projected, but the greatness of the task and the expense involved in its execution prevented the fulfilment of this design. The Editor respectfully invites all readers, who are so disposed, to favour him with any corrections and improvements of this and other portions of the Catalogue that may occur to them. He is but too conscious that in a labour of this magnitude, extending over a considerable length of time, and interrupted continually by the ordinary avocations of his office, mistakes must appear. For these he claims indulgence, as well as for a fault more deliberately committed, and to which he was driven, from the fear of increasing the size and cost of the volume, namely, the abbreviation (sometimes harsh) of the titles of the works described. He begs to acknowledge with sincere thanks the assistance he has received from those appointed to help him in this extensive work, and would especially name Mr. B. DAYDON JACKSON and Mr. F. NORGATE as rendering invaluable service in that respect. A list of the Members of the Library with their addresses is prefixed to the Appendix.

ROBERT HARRISON,

Secretary and Librarian.

ST. JAMES'S SQUARE: May 1888.

LAWS AND REGULATIONS

OF THE

LONDON LIBRARY.

CONSTITUTION.

I. THE government of the London Library shall be vested in a Committee, consisting of the President, four Vice-Presidents, three Trustees, who shall hold the funds and property of the Society, and of twenty-four other Members, chosen at the Annual General Meetings, six of these twenty-four to go out of office annually, but to be re-eligible. The President, Vice-Presidents, and Trustees shall hold their office for life, and any vacancy in these offices shall be filled up by the Committee, to be confirmed by the General Meeting.

II. The Committee, of whom three shall be a Quorum, shall have the entire administration of the affairs of the Library, subject to the Laws. They shall order all books, appoint the officers and servants of the Institution, enforce the observance of rules, impose fines and disqualifications, and manage the receipts and disbursements.

(a) The Committee shall meet periodically, at such times as they shall appoint, to examine the accounts, and to transact any business which may require their attention.

(b) All payments shall be made by cheques, signed by the Librarian, and countersigned by the acting Chairman of the Committee at such Meetings.

(c) Minutes shall be entered of all proceedings at such Meetings, and at the commencement of each Meeting the minutes of the preceding Meeting shall be read over for confirmation.

III. In the month of May in every year, on a day of which the Committee shall give at least three weeks' notice, a General Meeting of the Subscribers shall be held, for receiving the Report of the Committee, electing new Members of the Committee for the ensuing year, Auditors, or other annual officers, and making such alterations in the laws and regulations as they may think fit.

IV. In their Report the Committee shall include a full statement of the pecuniary affairs of the Library, balanced up to the 1st of May, and audited by two Auditors appointed by the previous Annual Meeting.

V. On receiving a requisition signed by twenty-five Members, the Committee shall at any time convene a Special General Meeting for any purpose stated in the requisition, or they may call such a Special General Meeting at their own discretion, for the proposal of any change in the laws, or for other important business, stating the purpose in the notice given of the Meeting; and such Meeting shall have power to dispose of any question so stated, without submitting the same to ballot, but not further to exercise the functions of the Annual General Meeting.

VI. Any individual Member intending to propose a change in the Laws, in the form of a motion, shall give written notice of his intention to the Librarian a fortnight before the Annual General Meeting, which notice shall be publicly exhibited in the Library. It shall be open to any Member at the Meeting to move an amendment upon the original motion without having given notice of his intention to do so, the adoption or rejection of such motion or amendment to be determined by a show of hands; or, if a ballot be demanded, by ballot, to be taken at such a time and in such a manner as the Committee may determine.

VII. No dividend, gift, division, or bonus in money shall be made unto or between any of the Members.

SUBSCRIPTION.

I. The Subscription to the London Library shall be Two Pounds annually with an entrance fee of Six Pounds, or Three Pounds annually without any entrance fee.

II. Members may at any time commute their annual subscriptions of Two Pounds by payment of Twenty Pounds, or their annual subscriptions of Three Pounds by a payment of Twenty-six Pounds.

III. Persons who wish to become Subscribers shall send their names to the Librarian, to be submitted to the Committee for their approval.

IV. The Committee shall have the power of declaring any Member to have ceased to belong to the Society, subject to an appeal to the General Meeting.

V. Subscriptions are payable annually, in advance, and may be commenced at any period of the year. If any Member shall fail to pay his subscription when due, together with expense of carriage, or any other charges to which he may be liable (having received notice thereof), within a period of two months therefrom, no more books shall be issued to him. If the subscription and such other sums be not paid within twelve months, the Subscriber's name shall be erased from the books, unless the delay shall be accounted for to the satisfaction of the Committee.

VI. Members absent from the British Islands for the space of twelve consecutive months may, on giving notice to the Committee, retain their names on the books, and be relieved from the payment due within that period, and so on for every further period of not less than a year.

VII. The bankers of the Society are Messrs. Ransom, Bouverie, & Co., 1 Pall Mall East, who alone are authorized to receive subscriptions.

LIBRARIAN.

I. The establishment of the London Library shall consist, for the present, of the Librarian, and of such servants as the Committee shall consider necessary.

II. The Librarian shall attend in the Library daily at such hours as the Committee shall appoint (from 11 to 6), and shall deliver out and receive all books required or returned, keep the accounts of the Institution, assist, when required, in the purchase of books, and generally conduct the business of the Library under the direction of the Committee. He shall also attend the Meetings of the Committee and the General Meetings in the capacity of Secretary.

III. The officers and servants shall be respectively liable to make good any injury which may be occasioned to the books or other property of the London Library by their default or negligence.

USE OF BOOKS.

I. Every Member residing within ten miles of the General Post Office, London, shall be entitled to take out any number of volumes not exceeding ten; and every Member residing at a greater distance, any number not exceeding fifteen at a time; any of the volumes to be exchanged for others as often as required. Members desirous of taking out more than the number of volumes allowed as above, may, upon payment of a proportionately increased subscription, claim an additional number of volumes at the rate of five volumes at one time of old works, or one extra copy of any new work in the Library for every additional pound per annum. The extra copy of the new work, if procurable, to be furnished not later than three days after application, provided the cost of such work be not so great as would, in the opinion of the Committee, render the purchase of extra copies inexpedient.

II. The Member who takes out any book shall pay the carriage of the same and all expenses from the time of issue from the Library to the time of its return; but any Member residing within the circuits of the Parcels Delivery Companies may have the book or books delivered at or taken from his house, not oftener than once a week, upon payment of ten shillings a year in advance. Members residing in other parts of Great Britain may become entitled to a similar privilege upon payment, in advance, of a fixed annual sum, to be agreed upon by the Committee, and according to the distance between the Library and the Railway Station nearest to the Member's residence. Members shall be liable to pay the full price of any book, or of the work of which it is a part, which shall be lost during the interval between its issue and return, unless the loss shall have been occasioned by the default of any person employed by the Society. And if during that interval any book shall be defaced or injured, the book, or the work of which it is a part, may, by order of the Committee, be sold, and the Subscriber in whose hands it has suffered such injury, unless the injury shall have been occasioned by the default of any person employed by the Society, shall be fined the amount of the difference between the price at which the book is sold, and at which it was purchased for the Library. Or, if the work has been presented, the price at which it was published, or at which another copy, equally good, may be procured.

III. If application is made for any book which has been taken out two months before, the Librarian shall give notice to the Subscriber who has borrowed the book to return it; and the Subscriber shall return the same within one week from the issuing of notice. But no Member shall be entitled to keep any book for a longer period than three months without giving notice to the Librarian of his intention to do so; and the Librarian shall, upon receipt of the notice, re-enter the work in the Subscriber's account as being taken out afresh. The time allowed for the perusal of new books (i.e. books published within the last two years) is fourteen days, to be reckoned from the day of issue, without reference to any summons for the return of the book. No Subscriber, unless privileged by an additional annual payment, as provided in Rule I., is to be allowed more than one new English work at a time.

IV. In the month of July of every year the Librarian shall send to every Subscriber a list of the books which have been charged to the Subscriber previously to the 1st of May preceding, and which have not been returned at the time the list is sent. And any Member to whom the list shall be sent shall be liable for the cost of all books named therein, which shall not be either returned or re-entered at the request of the Member before the 1st of November following.

V. In the event of any Subscriber keeping a book beyond the time at which it ought to be returned under Rule III., no other book shall be issued to him until the book so due shall have been returned; and if not returned within six months from the date of issue, provided that during this period the Librarian shall have made two written applications for its return, the Subscriber shall pay the full cost of the book.

VI. The Committee shall have power to determine on the classes of books which, except on special conditions, are not to be taken out of the Library.

CATALOGUE

THE LONDON LIBRARY.

SERIALS, and other publications, entitled respectively Abhandlungen, Annals, Archives, Berichte, Journals, Mémoires, Proceedings, Rapports, Répertoires, Sammlungen, Transactions, &c., may be found by reference to the names of the places or the countries to which they severally belong, or by reference to special names in titles. Thus 'Mémoires de l'Institut de France' will be found under France, 'Abhandlungen' under Berlin, Leipzig, &c.

ENGLISH OR FRENCH BOOKS having no place of publication named are to be considered as published respectively in London or Paris.

APPENDIX:—The contents of long sets and of works printed by Societies have been placed in the Appendix, where will also be found the headings 'Catalogues,' 'Parliamentary Reports,' and 'Tracts,' which are represented in the general list only by cross-references.

In cross-references the word 'See' is omitted, the name of the work referred to being printed in Italics.

ANONYMOUS WORKS of unknown authorship are placed with reference to names of persons, parties, or places mentioned in titles; in other cases with reference to names of editors, reporters, or translators. Thus many anonymous books relating to America are grouped under America, and in like manner works on other countries. The rule or name between brackets [—] preceding the title of a work signifies that the book was originally published anonymously.

TRIALS:—Reports of civil actions are given with reference to the party first named in each suit, but criminal proceedings are given under defendants' names.
